

you ever looked at someone with lust (which Jesus said is the same as committing adultery)? Etc. By now you should be very familiar with how to do this, having seen it done many times on the program. Don't listen to your fears; instead, think of the person's eternal welfare (we know you can do it). Go through as many of the Commandments as you can and end with, "It's certainly interesting to look at it from God's perspective, isn't it? Thanks for your honesty."

Again, there is no pressure to share the gospel with the person, unless you feel led to go further. If you sense that he is convicted by his sin, and you want to continue the conversation, follow the Lord's leading!
