

they were a child. Ask, "What does that make you?" and press them to say, "A thief."

#7 "Have you ever committed adultery?" Again, most will say no. Add, "Jesus said, 'Whoever looks upon a woman to lust after her has committed adultery with her already in his heart.' Have you ever looked at someone with lust?"

#3 "Have you ever taken the Lord's name in vain?" Some will try to wiggle out of this, but just push a little: "You mean you have never casually used God's name to express anger?" Most will admit to this one. Then gently explain, "So instead of using a four-letter filth word to express disgust, you have taken the name of the One who gave you life and everything that is precious to you, and you have dragged it through the mud. People don't even use Saddam Hussein's name to curse, and you have used Almighty God's name? That is called 'blasphemy,' and God promises that He will not hold anyone blameless who takes His name in vain."

Note: You should be noticing something at this point. The individual will either grow quiet (be "shut up under the Law," Roman 3:20) or will be getting agitated. If the person seems to recognize his guilt, you may want to say at this point, "By your own admission, you're a lying thief, a blasphemer, and an adulterer at heart, and we've only looked at four of the Ten Commandments." If he is still trying to defend himself ("I'm not a bad person"), go through a few more Commandments.

#6 "Have you ever murdered anyone?" Obviously, most will say that they haven't. Point out, "Jesus said that if you merely call your brother a fool, you are in danger of judgment, and the Bible says if you've ever hated anyone, you are a murderer in God's eyes. God does not simply judge actions, He knows the intentions of the heart."

#1 "Have you always put God first in your life?" Most will admit that they haven't. "God says that He is supposed to